A bit of a dry read, but this is Jnana/gyana. Written by the big giant head of Advaita Vedanta himself. Read it, and contemplate and be freed. This is old school truth, not New Age, Pop Yoga platitudes.

Some Books have a large page count to get to the Point, or make many points. This text is worth it's price for the first 20 pages or so. I try to keep in mind, always, the basic point noted below. 'If you (I or me, see difference'; "then I am Not [There] yet" ...is my very loose way of understanding of the main point of It's look at Non-Duality. If you are adding to your Non Dual library or understanding, this offering is a good addition. Straight forward, and not egg headed. As always, the Ramakrsna Math monks' translations are very good; That is their mission.

About the most concise book on the Self, although written in the 8th century but never the less, this has never been surpassed.

It is a condensed version of all 11 main Upanishads. If you want to learn the teachings of Upanishad and lack time, this is the book for you.
